Vienna, June 22nd, 2011

LOYTEC extends support and training unit

Jörg Welskop enhances LOYTEC's team in Germany

LOYTEC electronics, international specialist for innovative building automation systems, is pleased to welcome Dipl. Ing. Jörg Welskop (50), a proven adept in the field of building automation, aboard. After several months of introductory training at LOYTEC's headquarters in Vienna Welskop will switch to the office in Gießen in the vicinity of Frankfurt and be in charge of the significant German market. Among others his responsibilities will comprise the design of libraries for LOYTEC's freely programmable Automation Servers, the support of LOYTEC Competence Partners in executing various projects, technical sales support and implementation of customer trainings.

Dipl. Ing. Jörg Welskop graduated as utility engineer and industrial engineer. Among others he worked as branch manager at RUF Gebäudetechnik in Butzbach, as group head at Kessler & Luch in Gießen and as project engineer at Asea Brown Boveri in Hamburg. As an expert in building services engineering he is very experienced in system integration, programming and integration of LON- and BACnet projects, energy optimizing and remote maintenance. Welskop was able to improve his considerable project experience continuously in working for numerous industrial plants, office buildings, schools and power plants.
